Black-billed Gull (Tarapuka) Chroicocephalus bulleri Hutton 1871, Endemic
1855 South Island

Bruch (1855) first recognised this gull as distinct and called it Larus (Gavia) hartlaubii. Buller later also named this bird Bruchigavia melanorhyncha, not accepting Bruch's description. However, both specific names had already been given to other Laridae taxa. Hutton formally named it in 1871, in the belief it was a new species, dedicating it to Buller. T. H. Potts (1872) also described it, believing his gull to be different from C. bulleri.
